*2016 CHANGES TO MARKING REVIEW

An enquiry about a result should be a review of marking, not a 're-mark'

Ofqual's research has shown that schools usually ask exam boards to check marks that are just below a boundary, so a small change in a mark can lead to a grade change, and potentially advantage students whose marks were reviewed over those that weren't. By ensuring that marks are reviewed, only those marks that are the result of a genuine marking error not a difference in judgement will be changed, which will be fairer to all candidates.
