

Merchant Taylors' Old Girls Association

When you leave Merchant Taylors' Girls' School in 7 years' time, you will become an 'Old Girl'. Whilst you will still be young at this point, the title will remain with you for life, or at least until you grow into it! You will join the ranks of thousands of Old Girls, many of whom are still in touch with each other and the School today.

Old Girls range from those who have just left School and perhaps gone on to university, to those that left many years ago and are still attending events today in support of the School. You may not appreciate the benefits now, but being a member of the Old Girls' Association will, later in life, connect you to a strong and influential network and provide support, friendship and business connections for many years to come.

The OGA plays a vital part in maintaining the lifelong connection with School, and offers a number of benefits to you:

- Careers support, mentoring and networking, wherever you are in the world.
- Great social events – dinners, networking drinks, and sports events both in School and around the world.
- Donations to make your School life better – for example, the OGA funds the Enrichment Ambassador badges, and supported current pupils to go to the model G20 Summit in Boston in 2018.
- Financial support for Old Girls who need help to progress their career or lifelong learning.
- Staying in touch with School and fellow alumni via a monthly e-newsletter, social media and twice yearly magazine, Merchants' Tales.
- Close connections to the Merchant Taylors' Company in London, which itself offers apprenticeships, bursary support and career opportunities.
